

Middle Byzantine Castle or Theofilakto Castle

40.4519366, 23.6320049

At some point, likely during the 6th century, the castle suffered significant damage and was abandoned. It was revived and repaired in the 10th century, around 915, but was soon destroyed again. Despite this, the site continued to function as a fortified settlement until the 14th century.

The castle spans an area of 15,000 square meters, with the remaining walls extending approximately 1,000 meters in length, reaching a maximum height of 4 to 5 meters.
